BLOOD TEST IN SUIT AGAINST BEERY

The scientific test to determine the child's paternity was suggested today by Louis Greenbaum, attorney for the young actress.

Beery, who set out six days ago on a hunting trip in the High Sierra Mountains, had called to return to his lodge at Carson's Camp at a late hour last night. When arrested, he testified, he did not dare take this day because he feared police would find and arrest the bootlegger. For a similar reason he pleaded guilty.

Police testified Dunbar had denied the motor and didn't explain why he should mistake a car with a doctor's green cross on it for that of his bootlegger. He also refused to give the name of his friend.

Sheridan's Ride Is Recalled as Six Vets Meet Here

Six veterans of the Civil War, members of the old 26th Infantry, met at the State House today for their annual get-together. Several of them saw General Phil Sheridan turn disaster into defeat at Cedar Brook, after his famous ride from Winchester.

FEAR 'FLYING LION' IS DOWN IN DESERT

Los Angeles, Sept. 18.—Fear that Martin Jensen and his flying lion are down somewhere in the desert is expressed at the Star-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

No definite word of Jensen's progress had been received since noon Friday, about two hours after his take off from San Diego on a one-stop flight to New York, with Leo, the studio lion, as passenger in a specially constructed cage.

It was definitely learned that Jensen's plane had been seen at four towns along the line of flight, the last time at Mojave, near the State line. It is considered most probable that the plane is down in the Colorado desert. Jensen carried food sufficient for three days.

The first of the three notes, which were left in this room, was addressed to "Hartley," whose identity is a puzzle to all who knew the young teacher. It read: "Notes at school."

Almost unavailingly by comparison was the third note, which said: "Auto in garage, Berkshire road, Nottville."

CAN'T QUIT HIS UNLOVING WIFE, SAYS COURT

Married ten years and denied his wife's allegations during all that time, according to his testimony, Harold D. Westover learned today in Middlesex Probate Court that his coldness on his wife's part did not constitute grounds for divorce.

Westover also charged that his wife kicked, slapped and scratched him, told him she did not like him, failed to get his meals or take care of his children, but always took his pay envelope.

Although Mrs. Louise Westover, eight years older than her husband, did not appear to contest the suit, the judge asked Westover to prove she was guilty of cruelty.

"Were you afraid of your wife?" the judge asked Westover. "No, not physically, but she wasn't nice to be around," he replied. "When I tried to be affectionate, she repulsed me. I lost fifteen pounds in weight, having to get all my own meals."

"Denial of affection does not constitute grounds for divorce," said Judge Leggat. "It's the man's hard luck. He admits he is not afraid of his wife, and a man is supposed to stand more than a woman."

Westover testified they were married April 19, 1917, and three months later he enlisted and was overseas in another month. He said before and after the war, his wife's attitude was unchangeable.

LEAGUE VOTES TO OUTLAW WARS

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 19 (A. P.)—A Japanese reservation that pacific means for settlement of disputes between nations apply only to members of the League of Nations caused a flurry today when the League assembly unanimously approved the Polish proposal for outlawry of all wars of aggression.

The Polish resolution provides that all wars of aggression are and will be forbidden, that pacific means should be utilized for settlement of disputes "whatever their nature," between nations and that the assembly declare there is collusion for all members of the League to conform to these principles.

By FRED TOYE
Chapter 4

THE Duncan family faced many a threatened disaster during the struggling days of their San Francisco life. Funds were scarce and uncertain. Scarcely past the age of five, Isadora was already contributing to the family budget with her childish dancing exhibitions, and it was not many years before the girl assumed practically the entire burden of her own support and her mother's.

The mother's musical ability was of value in providing constant opportunity for the budding dancer to practice. Mrs. Duncan supplied the musical accompaniment to the girl's dances at times of public or private performance.

"I have always believed that the wins which we were given due to our family's musical ability and our intelligence. The most intelligent people in the world are wise artists and consumers of vegetables. The stupidest people are those who are not artists and eat meat."

"I had been trained along the usual ballet lines as a child, but gradually, as I reached my teens, I commenced to develop ideas of freeing the dance of the restrictions of the traditional ballet costume."

LEGION CONVENTION

The veterans' marching order was greeted, bringing marked approval from the immense crowd, happy and enthusiastic, which lined Paris' beautiful avenues.

PARADE IN DRIZZLE.

The crowds were late in gathering in the Legion parade because of rainy and threatening weather, but as the parade proceeded on its way the weather improved and rain-sidewalk windows and every available point of vantage was occupied.

The throngs were in a friendly mood, singing songs with the marching Legionnaires—when they knew them or thought they knew them—protesting some word English accents at times in their enthusiasm.

The colorful costumes of the drum corps caused some surprise, but the light white flannel trousers and pale blue coats of the Maine detachment simply amazed some of the spectators.

"It must be rather cold with those in Maine during the winter time," said one observer.

The Arizona Indians and the Minnesota cowboys made a tremendous hit, while there was a special call by the main marchers from Connecticut with a special French translation.

YANKER GIBBS A HIT.

Stander, pink-checked shirt—all in white and gold—was the belle of the parade. He was not only accompanied by the French spectators as "Ladon" Sam Bernheim's famous role.

"Gimme elles sont belles!" "How beautiful they are!"—went up on all sides.

The health and beauty of the many American girls in the parade, say in their holiday costumes of many kinds, and the way in which they marched along without the slightest faltering, made a great hit with their mostly French sisters.

General James A. Dyer, grand marshal of the parade, carried off the medalist in great style in the eyes of the sad weather, while General Gouraud, the honorary grand marshal, gave valuable instruction.

Thanks to General Gouraud, those arranged as the preparations for last year's parade at "Falloisville," General Dyer said.

The estimate of Washington in the Paris D'Yves—the most decorated veteran in Paris—was the subject of special attention from the groups of "legionnaires" formed in the vicinity.

Cheers, Instead of Hisses, Greet Bay State Legionners

Paris, Sept. 19 (I.N.S.)—The Massachusetts delegation was well cheered in the big Legion parade here today, despite the recentist still being under the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

The Bay State had been apprehensive of possible hisses and catcalls, but there were none. One group of Italian Fascists among the onlookers assaulted the Massachusetts colors.

was great in you during the war, for the friendship you are showing us today through your touching pilgrimages, for the precious recollections that will remain in our true and grateful hearts, we all acclaim you most heartily. And we are happy to find again in the glorious combatants who come back to us the most admirable image of our sister republic, the United States.

Sheldon Whitehouse, American chargé d'affaires, was the next speaker.

HONOR WAR DEAD.

The business portion of the opening session was devoted to the presentation of reports from the various committees and orders were given by the committee chairman for the adjournment.

Subsequent to a sign from Commander Savage, the vast assemblage of the Legionnaires, after the National anthem of France and the United States had been played several times, "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Dixie" were sung with "Over There" and "La Marseillaise" for the applause of the Legionnaires.

Light Legion bands appeared in the parade. The famous light band, while playing national anthems, "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Dixie" were sung with "Over There" and "La Marseillaise" for the applause of the Legionnaires.

REKINDLES EMOTIONS.

"This convention," the chargé continued, "rekindles deep emotions—war emotions which lifted us above ourselves. I know that these deliberations in peace will fall in an atmosphere which must stimulate every lofty sentiment in these kindly surroundings of people whose friendship dates from the dawn of our independence and has been reaffirmed in the stream of war."

Keeps Price Lower

THE old milk bucket served a double purpose in the old days, besides forming the sparkling cold water from the depths of the well to cool parched throats. It also did duty as a counterpart of the modern refrigerator.

Many of us can remember the days when mother hung the milk bag down the well to keep it cool. Or placed the eggs where the cold water of a nearby spring would trickle over them. Then came the dairy's cooler. Next we enjoyed house refrigeration in our homes. And now we have natural refrigeration. For this is exactly what the cold storage warehouse has come to be.

Without it families would face us as a result of it food prices are stabilized and the nation has plenty to eat, enjoying all the year a wide variety of out-of-season delicacies.

Soups Are Important

WHY do we eat soup? Why has it become the forerunner of our hearty meals? Doctors tell us that soup stimulates the flow of the digestive juices, promoting good digestion and making all your food do you more good.

Sparking eyes and glowing cheeks never go with a listless appetite and poor digestion. Soup is a wonderful aid in keeping the appetite normal and healthy. It is a valuable help in winning and holding that golden health which is the very foundation of beauty.

Bananas in Plenty

THE whole country not so long ago lamented over the great banana shortage, but now we need no longer fear that our nationally favorite fruit will be denied us.

You can buy bananas anytime, anywhere, and they are one of the cheapest foods available. When ripe, it is instant ready to serve. It may be eaten at any meal or between meals; for breakfast—with dry cereals and cream.

In the lunch box, it satisfies the child's craving for sweets and his appetite. It is an emergency ration dear to the heart of the housewife, for it may be used as a fruit, an entree, a vegetable, a salad or a dessert.

Try this for a hurry-up dessert: BANANA SOFT CUSTARD—Cut ripe bananas in half lengthwise, place in glass dish, sprinkle with chopped walnuts. Pour over hot custard and allow to set. Place a few marshmallows on top to decorate.

Bananas are thoroughly ripe and ready to eat raw or in uncooked dishes like the above when they are deep golden yellow, flecked with brown spots, a sure sign of tempting flavor and nourishing goodness, with easy digestibility.

Before 9—and after 5—

Before 9—and after 5—
Miss David wants her precious hours for herself!

From her home in Roxbury, Miss Anna David writes us that now the modern business girl wears daintier clothes she has considerable washing to do—especially in the summer!

"My time and energy before and after business hours must be conserved—and that's where Chipso helps. I swear by it! I cannot afford to expend energy rubbing clothes; nor can I take the chance of ruining them on a washboard. Chipso suds find all the dirt spots and soak them clean."

Make instant suds by running hot water over Chipso. Cool the water to lukewarm. Soak the clothes 20 minutes to get the dirt well loosened. (If overnight soaking is more convenient, it is just as safe.) Squeeze the clothes with your hands to remove the dirt. Rub bad spots or edges by hand. Rinse and wring.

Again, Chipso helps Miss David wash dishes about 10 minutes quicker each time. "No employer wants a girl to have dishpan hands," she writes. "Chipso quickly removes the grease from dishes and prevents my hands from becoming red and coarse."

And here is the Chipso way to whisk through dishwashing and save the hard third of the work:

Run hot water on Chipso flakes for instant suds. Wash your glass and silver as usual. Before rinsing and drying them, put the china into the Chipso suds to dissolve the grease. While drying the china, soak the grease off the utensils. It saves your hands from the hard third—for rubbing off food particles and grease is roughening work. With the large Chipso box a clothes-washing costs between 4 and 6 cents. A dishwashing costs less than a third of a penny!

THERE'S NO LIMIT

TO THE VARIETY of delicious dinner that you can make even more tempting if you own a melon shaped aluminum mold. For instance: Chocolate pudding, frozen mousses, fruit salads, fancy ices. Regularly priced $4.95, but you save 92c if you buy one on or before September 24. Till then it's only 93c. Another bargain is 8 in. aluminum tube cake pan 59c. The high tube prevents breaking cake and serves as a cooling pedestal.

SPECIAL SPECIAL! The last lot of army boilers made for the U. S. Government. No more will be made, I'm told. Cost Uncle Sam $2.25 apiece, now selling in four sizes, 7, 8, 9 or 10 gallons, 98c each. Of extra-heavy charcoal and blacked tin. Superior quality. Three bronze handles. Just the thing for canning or other cooking.

JUST ARRIVED from the other side. Real Irish linen crash. Makes lovely dish towels for the fall bride, or to replenish your own stock. 3 yards for $1.00.

DECORATIVE AND USEFUL, are extra large refreshment trays of enameled metal. Colored gayly in scarlet, black, blue or green. Decorated with parrots, flowers, or fruits. Big enough to hold beverage pitcher and 8 or 10 glasses. Adds decorative touch to buffet when not in use. 19c. Tea rooms take notice.

THERE'S ELUSIVE PIGNANCY in oyster cocktail sauce. The kind you've enjoyed in best hotels and restaurants. Now bottled for your convenience. Just the sauce to add zest to your crab meat, shrimp and lobster dishes. Good with cold meats, too. 3c a bottle.

WHAT PRICE FREEDOM from the drudgery of wash day? 25c for 2 packages of tablets that harmlessly bleach your clothes without bluing. Enough for month of washing. Removes dirt without rubbing. Even scrubby collars and cuffs. Softens and whitens the hands. Good for woodwork, tile and paint, too.

DRESS UP THE SANDWICH with dainty slices of a bread-and-butter pickle. Fill sandwich with chopped ham, minced tongue, or what have you, and lay slices of pickle on top of filling. Or chopped up and mixed with mayonnaise makes nice tartar sauce. 25c a bottle. Best ever. Real home made pickles without the work.

ANOTHER FAVORITE is big quart jar of sweet relish pickle. 49c. Really less than that, because you can use the jar again for preserving or pickling. And the relish is delicious. Finely chopped like piccalilli.

YOU CAN'T TELL a certain brand of delicious diced carrots from fresh ones. Golden cubes of sweetness and nourishment. A decorative and wholesome addition to salad or soup. Even people who don't like carrots ask for more. 25c. Wonderful with green peas or creamed.

DEWPSLEY'S LETTER

Jack Asks Tunney to Make Public Role Story of Hoff Contract

Dear Tunney: Before we start swinging punches at each other here in Chicago, how about making a little explanation to the public and to me about all the angles involved in that suit which Max (Boo Boo) Hoff of Philadelphia, fired at you?

It seems to me that if you did, it might give the folks a somewhat different idea about that Philadelphia fight of ours than they now have. And perhaps such explanation would make it clear to the public that a lot of gamblers, and perhaps, by your friend, Abe Attell, and a line betting place on you to win that fight after you and Hoff and Billy Gibson, your manager, had one of those conference talks.

EXTREMELY HARMFUL
Up to this time you have been extremely helpful about the whole matter, as far as the public is concerned. But I think the time has come when you should tell the truth to the public. Why not give it to them?

If you still refuse to speak the English language, maybe your manager can do the talking for you, or if he is in the same plight as you, maybe Jimmy Bronson, the chief second for your Philadelphia fight, and the man who is to be your chief second in the boxing battle, would be only too happy to speak up.

Let me name Jimmy Bronson who was the institution in 1919 for the "dope" racket, and who was tortured at me; the same Bronson who had behind the coats of several American Legion posts and who shot at me; the same Jimmy Bronson who picked me out of about 200,000 American men who were exiled from war duty and tried to wreck and run me in public opinion for no other reason than the fact that he thought he could turn me into the discard and send me to the gas chamber; the same Bronson, fighter, Bob Martin, the shot at George.

Or, if you and Gibson and Bronson need an official spokesman, why not let your little chum, who is the tool for a gambler's machine in and around New York, speak in your behalf?

SOMETHING MORE
Before I go any further, I want to say to you that before I got into Philadelphia on fight night, I was tipped off that there was something about the fight that I should be on my guard against. I was told that you had been made a party to the fight, and that you were going to be the chief second for the fight. I was told that you were going to be the chief second for the fight. I was told that you were going to be the chief second for the fight.

When I arrived in Philadelphia, I learned that you were going to be the chief second for the fight. I was told that you were going to be the chief second for the fight. I was told that you were going to be the chief second for the fight.

When I arrived in Philadelphia, I learned that you were going to be the chief second for the fight. I was told that you were going to be the chief second for the fight. I was told that you were going to be the chief second for the fight.

PRINCIPALS IN BITTER RING CONTROVERSY

Tunney Calls Jack's Letter Cheap Appeal
Tunney Training Camp, Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 19.—Gene Tunney today received a copy of Jack Dempsey's open letter in which Dempsey challenges him to "tell the truth about the 1926 fight." Tunney wrote the following brief note to Dempsey:

"My Dear Dempsey:
Your so-called open letter to me was brought to my attention. While my reaction is to ignore it and its evident lack of sincerity, yet I cannot resist saying that I consider it a very cheap appeal for public sympathy. "GENE TUNNEY."

What was the meaning of Attell's remark? It was a cheap appeal for public sympathy. It was a cheap appeal for public sympathy. It was a cheap appeal for public sympathy. It was a cheap appeal for public sympathy. It was a cheap appeal for public sympathy.

As the story comes to me, Attell went to see you in your camp in Philadelphia. He was there to see you in your camp in Philadelphia. He was there to see you in your camp in Philadelphia. He was there to see you in your camp in Philadelphia. He was there to see you in your camp in Philadelphia.

And why did Gibson have to have the money in the first place? Why did he have the money in the first place? Why did he have the money in the first place? Why did he have the money in the first place? Why did he have the money in the first place?

Furthermore, if it was a loan made to you to put over a real estate deal, why was it that Hoff's crowd now says that you rejected several of the party drafts of that agreement? Why did you so freely about how such an agreement was worked out? Finally, if it was an agreement made between you and Hoff, why did you sign your real name or your initials on it? Why did you sign your name as Eugene Tunney and your ring name as Gene Tunney?

CANADIAN GIRL LEADS IN TITLE GOLF TOURNAMENT

Oakden City, N. Y., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Miss Ada McKinnis of Toronto, women's champion of Canada, took the lead in the qualifying round of the women's national golf championship with a score of 77. She was out in 39 and came home in 38. Women's par is 31, divided into out and 42 holes.

But the Canadian star turned in her 77, Miss Margaret Orcutt and Mrs. Brian Burns were tied for the low score at 75.

ODDS ON TUNNEY TAKE STARTLING TUMBLE

Dempsey's great showing in his workout at Lincoln Field in his workout for the sudden drop in his odds on Tunney. Terry Jack is the pugna master of odds, according to those who have seen him boxing at the training camp. His big was near the great ring fighter of Toledo face it is possible for him to use at 14 to 1.

And Dempsey will finish Tunney in short order, say the experts, for while the odds have been dropping, Tunney has been the sporting world at large and asking him to decide to quit in the wind and cry for a knockout.

The odds charges against Tunney, however, shot from a better point and having no connection whatever with the bayhoo for the odds, have the sporting world at large and asking him to decide to quit in the wind and cry for a knockout.

On the other hand there are those who say that the exchange between the two fighters will send them to the hospital. Philadelphia odds men are sure to make a fortune out of the fight. The odds on Tunney are 14 to 1, and the odds on Dempsey are 1 to 10.

Another Gibson nor Tunney but Dempsey was the wreck he proved to be in Philadelphia. The odds on Tunney are 14 to 1, and the odds on Dempsey are 1 to 10.

Meditations of a Wife

BY HELEN ROWLAND

MOST love-affairs would turn out more satisfactorily if a woman could only see the logical and approaching, and make a dash for it, first.
A Don Juan is like a darling fire; he always smokes faint once too often, and comes down with a crash, and ends usually at the feet of the wrong woman.
Many a man has wanted to marry a girl because she was so full of pep, and sparkling chatter, and then, longed to divorce her for the same reason.
A "contented" couple is one that has given love a decent burial, and hung a beautiful portrait of domestic affection on the wall, for the benefit of the neighbors.
Marriage is the point at which a woman should turn off the motor of her repulse, put the brakes on her wit, and coast along easily on the soothing tires of silence.
By the time an actor has acquired pose and method in his work, he has usually lost most of his fire and enthusiasm, and by the time a man has become technical and better perfect in his love-making, his best "time" is apt to fall flat on the face of a disenchanted woman—right speech.

A man is not hopelessly middle-aged until he stops trying to find a brand new sentimental sensation, and begins trying to revive his ability to feel a few of the old ones.
Retain and Reck are business partners who go about looking for people who have nothing to do but amuse themselves.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

BY HEATHER FAIRFAX

I love a young man dearly. And he loves me. He has proved it by offering marriage.
He had quite an accident and is now in the hospital, but is doing finely and will soon return home.
There is my problem: His folks are of different nationality and his mother doesn't speak good English—his reason for never introducing me to them. This used to make me so blue that I wondered whether he really cared for me. Now you see why I feel as though I just couldn't go over to his house to see him. Am I foolish, please—ever even terrible to let such a thing stand in the way of a love like this when he is ill?
JUST GRATEFUL
SINCE your friend loves you and has asked you to marry him, I am sure he will be well enough to let you know the fact that his mother does not speak English will not make her any less dear to you. The fact that she is the mother of the man you love is not a reason for your regard and affection for him to be lessened.
He may refuse the request if his house is poor and he is sensitive and proud. If so, respect his wishes and stay away.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a girl of sixteen. I am in my third year at high school. The other day, while walking home from school, a young man stopped and asked me to go with him. I do not know him and have never spoken to him. I refused. Did I do right?
I never go to parties or on auto. Sincerely, Edna, 1, 100, 1st St., N.Y.C.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Better pay for honest public service.
3—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
4—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.

3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Without Any Subsidy

How an American Merchant Marine Can Be Developed

President Coolidge is interesting himself in the proposition, repeatedly advocated by this newspaper, of getting the American railroads to establish overseas lines.

Every large steamship service that operates from an American port is fed by American railroads. The port is nothing but a funnel through which the railroads pour the products of the factories, mines, fields and forest of a continent.

American railroads, if they chose, could exercise a great influence in the routing of this traffic. They have the confidence of shippers. At present the railroads have no interest in directing this business to American lines. They would have the strongest kind of interest in doing so if they participated in the ownership of steamship lines. They would not simply earn money on goods carried to the seaboard. They would earn freight money on the goods clear through to foreign destination if carried in their own steamship lines.

The Canadian Pacific Railroad Company, north of our border line, is already doing what is proposed here. From both Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the Dominion it is operating steamship lines to all principal markets of the world. It is the most powerful single influence in the development of Canadian foreign trade. Yet the influence of the Canadian Pacific is insignificant compared to the influence that could be exercised by the vastly more powerful American groups of rail lines.

The proper method would probably be for the railroad lines terminating in a single port to unite in maintaining joint water lines. They would not need to form entirely new steamship organizations. Since the war, plenty of able American steamship men have been developed who would welcome the financial and traffic strength that could be offered them by a partnership with American railroads. Today these American steamship operators are handicapped by higher operating costs than their foreign rivals. These higher costs would be more than offset by the larger volume of business which our railroads could concentrate on their own ships.

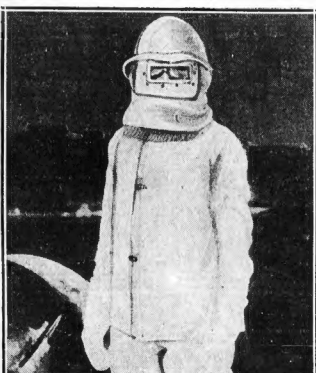

American lines with such support could get along without a subsidy. Large-scale production in all lines of business has been America's answer to the lower wage scales of foreign competitors. Due to large-scale production we pay higher wages and yet undersell the world with our industrial products.

This plan represents large-scale production in shipping. It offers our ships the opportunity to carry more than their competitors. It is a business substitute for subsidy.

The solution of the merchant marine problem would be a great triumph for the Coolidge administration. Mr. Coolidge is on the right track when he considers the unification of our land and ocean carriers.

Courage and Science

They Make a Fine, Useful Combination

HE WALKS THROUGH FIRE

Most dangerous and difficult fires occur at oil wells and great oil reservoirs. The amount of water available, when it is available, has very little effect on these fires. But, curiously enough, such fires can be extinguished by the explosion of some terrifically high charge of dynamite, or still better, TNT. The business of this man, wearing a suit of asbestos one inch thick over his entire body, is to make the charge as explosive as possible to the center of the fire. In his three-piece suit, he locates his charge of TNT, which explodes only on concussion by a cap. Very rapidly, as you can imagine, he walks away again through the flames.

The TNT explodes and put out the fire. Thus, this one man has put out one hundred oil well fires in Texas, preventing gigantic loss, and without serious injury to himself.

This is making courage really useful.

LOS ANGELES IS GROWING FAST

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FEW people realize the tremendous growth of Southern California. There has been so much blowing by speculators and so much advertising that conservative Eastern people are inclined to look at the matter as a huge joke. Los Angeles, however, and surrounding territories, is no joke.

Here is a rapidly growing community which, a few years ago, was but a hamlet. Some idea of its size may be gathered through the fact that Los Angeles County is the wealthiest county per capita in America.

Some other facts have recently appeared in an advertisement of this territory, such as the statement that one-third of the people in California live in Los Angeles County. Also that Los Angeles is the largest city on the Pacific Coast. This county produces more agricultural wealth annually than any other county in the nation.

It is hard to realize that almost every known product is made in Los Angeles County. This statement was challenged the other day by one who said they had no diamonds here, but investigation showed that a form of diamonds known as the Bakersfield diamond was produced in Los Angeles County.

The city has grown 120 per cent. in six years and now contains 1,200,000 people. The harbor of Los Angeles is the world's greatest oil exporting and lumber importing port. The city produces industrially more than a billion and one-quarter dollars' worth of new wealth every year.

It is the fifth city in America in new construction activity. It is growing faster numerically and on a percentage basis than New York City.

It is a city of homes and the efforts of real estate agents to sell lots to people have resulted in a multitude of home owners, so that the community rests upon a much sounder basis than those places where people live in flats and rent property.

Added to all this it is a clean city as very little bituminous coal is consumed in heating or manufacture.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

BY ALYNE MICHAELS
LONG ago I used to revel in the "silly" of the stage, all the wonders it could picture, life in every corner that can bring you into contact with the world, and I was always coming just in time! Much I've learned of morals of men, and I find life's a game, so I'm glad to have the mirth of the stage, all the wonders it could picture, life in every corner that can bring you into contact with the world, and I was always coming just in time! BOSTON DAY BY DAY

Up near Park square we saw Edna Miller, the steam engine professor at Technology, who always carries a large bag of tools. He was in France, but who now keeps the freshmen in order at Tech.

We passed Old Young's Hotel with its Civil War furniture. And its walls telephone. And the rooms where Thomas F. Lawson had his office. The town is changing.

Tremont Street after midnight is deserted. Hardly anyone in sight. The waitresses in one big place are drinking. The only place left open is a little further along in South Square there is a Chinese restaurant. One remarks he has never seen that day.

The young college men who go into financial work have a great advantage over others if they have social polish. One banker told us this factor counted very heavily with his employment managers. The routine work of the bank can be done by anyone, but employees frequently come into contact with people whose politeness is a guide to character.

The young banker must be able to meet the bank president as a social equal. Politeness pays, and it is expected many a book of etiquette is sold to budding bankers.

An insurance president shrugged his shoulders when asked how business was. He told us that twenty years ago the average married man carried no insurance. Now a married man without some sort of protective insurance is looked down upon by his friends. So the insurance business is stable and permanent.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Someone sent me this—
In his analysis Robert Woodrow has a touching incident of his own father. "He was much affected by his worthy son. Mr. Alexander Woodrow's death, it being somewhat sudden and surprising. But he carried away Christianly under that sharp disposition. . . . He went down to the place where his son's corpse was. He stayed some time. They required at that time had been doing there. "I was," says he, "thinking God for thirty-one years' loan of sanity, my dear son."

God's loan—have you ever thought of love in that way?

We say—"my child," "my husband," "my wife or mother, father, sister or brother—but they are not ours." They were not born to be part of our lives, nor were we born to be part of theirs. They are only visitors who have passed our way and are carrying with us for a little while.

That little lad, trotting by your side, his chubby hand clinging to your finger, his bright face upturned to you like a flower—you feel that he is your nearest, dearest possession. If he should be taken from you tomorrow you would be racked with an agony of loss.

But you cannot lose him, my dear, for you have never truly had him. He is only God's care, sweet loan to you—a small butterfly who has darted into your window and must shortly pass out into the garden again and be off and away.

He is not yours. Even now, while you cuddle him lovingly in your arms, you know the truth of this. Even now there is a tiny, tiny thread between his baby spirit and yours—well through which you can never break. He is only a little child, but you cannot fathom the brooding mystery of his tiny brain.

As he grows, you will be more and more removed from each other. No matter how much you love each other or how freely you confide in each other, you can never be part of each other. And if you try to bind him and to prevent him from ex-
